That Proves the Power of P.-S. Waist Store "Wirthmor" Waists, $1 "Welworth" Blouses, $2

This is a true story of modern co-operation, and concerns every woman. A year ago one of America's great blouse makers formed a league of buyers from one hundred leading stores all over the country, and showed that the constant expense of selling, coupled with the uncertainties of manufacturing a fashionable article, etc., totaled a very considerable proportion of the cost of making waists.

They agreed positively to purchase each week a large quantity of blouses to retail at $1, limited to four styles; and at $2 two styles only; thus the "Wirthmor" and "Welworth" Waists were born.

The Association contract of thousands of dozens gave Mr. Blouse maker a powerful leverage in buying materials, securing fabrics never before placed in a popular-priced waist. Then again, by limiting his designers to six models each week, the concentration resulted in styles never before approached, in artistic beauty, among $1 and $2 blouses. Moreover, his big contract caused him to be sure of large output, and enabled him to gather the very best work women for the constant employment that they had never known before.

A month ago we associated ourselves in this plan and last week put on sale these famous waists at $1 "Wirthmor," and the "Welworth" at $2. The public is an unerring judge of values and the very first day the selling was great—women know.

Every Saturday from now on will come the six new styles and we want every woman to know about these dollar waists that are Worth more.

Brilliant Home Wedding.
The marriage of Miss Alice Garrett Allen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James F. Allen, to Wilson Barlow, of Buckhannon, was impressively solemnized in the home of the bride's parents at 7:30 o'clock Wednesday evening, in the presence of only the immediate relatives and a few intimate friends. The Rev. Dr. William C. Taylor, pastor of the First Baptist church, officiated.

The house was most appropriately decorated with quantities of palms and ferns, augmented with roses, carnations and ascension lilies. The drawing room, where the marriage ceremony was celebrated, was most fitting in its floral decorations of green and white. Tall standards of ascension lilies and bride roses were placed along the aisle, where white satin ribbons led the way to a beautiful improvised altar, over which was suspended a huge white satin bell, artistically embellished with white roses, carnations and lilies.

To the sweet strains of Lohengrin's wedding march the bridal party entered the drawing room, led by Miss Pauline Musgrave, bridesmaid, and Miss Nina Allen, sister of the bride, maid of honor, who wore exquisite gowns of pink silk net, over pink satin and carried bouquets of Killarney roses. They were followed by a small niece of the bride, Mary Elizabeth Allen, who wore a dainty frock of white net and lace, and carried a shepherdess basket of pink roses. Master Paul Hornor, a nephew of the bride, wore a suit of white linen, and carried the wedding ring enfolded in the petals of a bride rose.

The bride entered with her father, who gave his daughter's hand in marriage. Miss Alice Allen was indeed a lovely bride. Her gown was a hand-made creation of ivory white tulle, a lovely tulle veil, which reached to the end of the graceful court train, was caught to her coiffure, with orange blossoms and she carried a huge shower bouquet of bride roses and valley lilies.

At the close of the marriage ceremony, when the solemn and impressive benediction had been pronounced, a shower of rose petals fell from the marriage bell, which enveloped the bride and groom, presenting a picture of loveliness and beauty not soon to be forgotten.

A reception followed the marriage service and in the receiving line were Mr. and Mrs. Allen. The bride party and Mrs. Charles Barlow, mother of the bridegroom.

The floral decorations of the drawing room were obtained in white roses, carnations and lilies. The window tops were gracefully festooned with showers of bride roses, curtained by vines of smilax and asparagus, while the mantel was banked with potted plants of ferns, with groupings of roses and carnations. Portieres of roses of smilax and showers of white rosebuds enhanced the scene. The decorations in the library were carried out in crimson roses and carnations, while the reception hall was marked with simplicity, with tall, stately palms, and potted plants. The staircase rails were artistically embellished with ropes of smilax and asparagus vines. Jane flowers were effectively and profusely used in the decorations of the dining room. The dining room table, with its lace covering, had for its centerpiece a huge mound of Killarney roses and from the electric dome, which was beautified by ropes of smilax, were scattered of pink tulle, carried to the corners of the table, caught with clusters of pink roses.

Ices were served by Mrs. D. W. Jacobs and Mrs. Frank Wright. In the library coffee was poured by Mrs. W. F. Taylor and fruit punch was refreshingly served in the reception hall by Mrs. Paul Hornor. Among the many aides who so charmingly assisted the hostess were Mrs. Paul Hornor and Mrs. Wayne Hornor, who gracefully took charge of the wedding book, where about 200 guests registered on this happy occasion. Mrs. Daniel W. Jacobs, Mrs. Frank Wright, Misses Louise and Virginia Davis, Miss Constance Harrison, Mrs.

Genevieve Roberts, Elizabeth Gore and Marie Allen.

The bride's going away gown was a smart costume of dark blue gabardine, with dark blue hat to match. Mr. and Mrs. Barlow left last night for an eastern honeymoon trip and will be at home to their many friends in Buckhannon, where they will permanently reside.

Among the many out-of-town guests who attended the reception were Mrs. Charles Barlow, Mr. and Mrs. Farnsworth Dr. and Mrs. Talbot, Captain Homer Poundstone, Mrs. Benjamin Bassett, Matthew Edmiston, Miss Eugenia Young, Miss McWhorter, all of Buckhannon, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wright and sons of Connellsville, Pa.; Miss Helen Frisch, of Rowland Park, Baltimore, Md.; and Miss Mary Weeden, of Dorchester, Mass.

An interesting and unique incident connected with this beautiful and charming wedding which was celebrated Wednesday evening, was the anniversary of the one hundredth year of the marriage of the bridegroom's great-great-grandfather. In March, 1815 Clarissa Allen and William Barlow were married in the state of Vermont. One hundred years after Alice Allen and Wilson Barlow were married June 23, 1915, in Clarksburg, W. Va.

Quiet Home Wedding
A quiet but pretty home wedding took place at 10:30 o'clock Thursday morning at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. George Carson, at 207 Oak street, when Wade H. Goldsmith and Miss Alice Mabel Handshield were married by the Rev. G. D. Smith, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church, in the presence of relatives and friends.

Mr. Goldsmith resides at Holiday Cove, Brooke county, and holds a nice position with the Phillips Sheer and Tin Plate Company at Weirton, while his bride has been stenographer for the Fairmont and Baltimore Coal and Coke Company a year and a half. They are splendid young people and have many friends who extend best wishes.

Piano Recital Fine.
Piano pupils of Miss Freda Holden who took part in the recital in her home on South Third street Wednesday night acquitted themselves admirably, showing that they had been painstakingly and efficiently taught in piano music by Miss Holden. The various numbers were given in a most pleasing way and the pupils manipulated the instrument after the manner of masters of it. Parents and friends who attended congratulated the pupils and expressed gratification on to Miss Holden for the thoroughness of their work.

weighing from two or three pounds, score the flesh to the bone in squares about an inch apart. Make a powder by mixing together one teaspoon of salt, one of pepper and one-half teaspoon dry mustard. Rub this well into the flesh, then place the meat on a hot gridiron, put in four or five inches above a clear fire and broil it first on one side then on the other until it is hot throughout. Place it on a hot dish, brush it over with clarified butter, squeeze the juice of a lemon upon it and serve as hot as possible. Time to broil, about one-quarter hour. The hot mixture should be rubbed into the joint some hours before it is broiled.
